Marie Curie Northern Ireland

A whole society approach to end of life care

Care and support
through terminal illness

The case for a whole society approach to end of life care

The population of Belfast is getting older, and there has been a steady rise in the prevalence of advanced and terminal illness in the city.

- The number of people in Belfast on registries for COPD, cancer and dementia has increased by over 70% since 2007. ^[1]
- Across Northern Ireland, the death rate is projected to increase by 32% by 2041 ^[2] – the highest proportional increase in the UK.

People with advanced and terminal illnesses, and their loved ones, are vulnerable to serious additional problems that are linked to their health conditions, including loneliness, social isolation, job loss, financial strain, stigma, depression, anxiety and fear. Problems of this nature can have a significant impact on the quality of life of those affected by terminal illness, and can be difficult to address through clinical health services alone.

We need to recognise the limits to clinical care and service provision and consider the benefits of a whole society approach to end of life care – one that provides non-clinical support in a community setting and treats care as a civic responsibility, shared by everyone.

In practice, this approach involves social efforts from across society to improve health in the face of terminal illness, caregiving and bereavement. This includes health promotion and awareness-raising, along with measures to change attitudes towards death and dying.

Marie Curie is calling for Belfast City Council's People and Communities Committee to act as a partner in the provision of non-clinical, community-based support for local people affected by terminal illness.

What is involved?

A whole society approach to end of life care involves efforts from all the major sectors in the community – including local government, the business community, education, arts and cultural institutions and the housing sector – to support those affected by terminal illness and their loved ones.

At the heart of this approach is the recognition that care is not solely the task of HSC services – it is everyone's responsibility, and the issues associated with death and dying cannot be fully addressed without a whole-community approach.

The benefits of a whole society approach to end of life care are significant:

- Expands the reach of end of life care services by engaging the wider community.
- Addresses a greater range of needs (including social, psychological and spiritual) that may not always be met by clinical services.
- Mobilises untapped sources of social and spiritual care/support, as well as practical resources and expertise.
- Increases social networks and reduces social isolation.
- Helps to alleviate the significant burden on caregivers.
- Improves overall quality of life.
- Reduces the burden on frontline/clinical services, including unscheduled care.
- Provides care in a community setting, usually the place of choice for both patients and carers.

Examples

Below we have listed a number of examples of community-based initiatives that Belfast City Council could pursue to help support people affected by terminal illness. This is not a prescriptive list, but provides real examples of how local authorities, charities and voluntary groups across the UK have implemented community based approaches to end of life care.

Belfast City Council could:

- Establish a Carer Passport scheme to help identify staff who are caring for someone with a terminal illness;
- Introduce work-place resources to support staff affected by terminal illness and bereavement;
- Review council policies on sickness leave, compassionate leave and carers leave to ensure staff receive all the support they need when they are affected by terminal illness;
- Host a series of Death Cafés for staff and the public to raise awareness of the issues around death and dying and the support available for people affected by terminal illness. These could be organised in partnership with relevant organisations like Marie Curie or Cruse Bereavement Care;
- Host information pop-ups on issues relevant to death, dying and loss – for example, funeral planning, dealing with bereavement, balancing work and caring responsibilities etc;
- Support local art galleries and museums to run exhibitions exploring ideas of death, loss, grief, and remembrance.

Pushing Up Daisies festival

Pushing Up Daisies is an annual, volunteer-led festival held in Todmorden, West Yorkshire. The festival is designed to inspire public conversations about death and dying, with events including storytelling shows, art exhibitions, discussion groups, Death Cafés and writing workshops.

The 2017 festival included a children’s workshop highlighting loss and bereavement through storytelling; a men’s grief discussion group; and Death Cafés on funeral planning with advice from religious representative and grief counsellors (see attached).

“[T]aking time, giving space, having knowledge and being willing to sit with the ‘difficult stuff’ can radically improve the experience of end of life – and that that is an incredibly worthwhile thing to do.”

The People and Communities Committee could organise a one-day event with the following potential exhibitors:

- Cruse Bereavement Care
- Law Society NI
- Carers NI
- Macmillan Cancer Support
- National Association of Funeral Directors
- Men in Sheds

This would provide an opportunity to raise awareness of issues around death and dying and share information about available support services.

Alternatively, the Committee could organise a larger festival-type event. The programme for the event could potentially include the following (this is a draft for example purposes only):

Day One
Activity	Potential Partners
Have you made your will yet? – Information pop-up on wills and estates Belfast City Hall	Law Society NI
Life can be a challenge, especially when it comes to death. Talking about it can sometimes help – Death Café The Bobbin	Cruse Bereavement Care Marie Curie
Death from a different angle – Painting and sculpture exhibition exploring death and dying	The MAC Belfast
Bringing death to life – Story telling group on ageing and loss Linen Hall Library	Libraries NI
Day Two
Presentation: balancing education and caring responsibilities	Carers NI Queen’s University Belfast
Discussion group on living with terminal illness	Marie Curie Belfast Health and Social Care Trust
Good Grief – Practical and emotional advice session on coping with the loss of a loved one	Cruse Bereavement Care
A life well lived – bucket lists, creating memories and leaving legacies – Death Café Marie Curie Belfast Hospice	Marie Curie

These examples are not prescriptive or exhaustive, but demonstrate how whole society approaches to end of life care can be implemented in practice. The Committee could start with as many or as few of these initiatives as it sees fit, or come up with something different entirely.

Our ask

We would ask the People and Communities Committee to:

- Formally endorse the benefits of a whole society approach to end of life care.
- Commit to a programme of activity to support people affected by terminal illnesses in Belfast City Council, with the support of Marie Curie and other relevant organisations.
- Create and publish an Action Plan for this programme of work.
- Submit the Action Plan for approval by the full Council.

TOWN HALL HUB

The festival has a hub in the Town Hall this year at the following times:

Wed 10th and Thurs 11th: 10am–9pm

Fri 12th: 10–4.30pm

There will be a PUD style death café every day. Drop in for information, craft activities, exhibitions, tea and cakes, soup and bread or to make a memorial.

There will always be a Daisy person on hand (see below) as well as a huge range of talks, workshops and discussion groups over the three days. Events in blue boxes will take place at the Town Hall.

DAISY PEOPLE

“Daisy People” are volunteers who are happy to have a conversation with anyone about death, dying or bereavement. They will be at festival events, the Town Hall Hub & about the town, feel free to talk to them. You can recognise them by their Daisy Badge.

FOCUS ON DEMENTIA

We are having a particular focus on Dementia at this year's festival with events throughout the week and a Dementia Day in the library on Tuesday 9th May.

All events in green boxes are dementia focused.

HEALTHY MINDS CALDERDALE

Our friends at Healthy Minds are putting on the following workshops throughout the week:

How I would like to be remembered (visual arts)
Mon 8th, 12.30–2.30pm (Golden Lion)

Stories of the afterlife (writing)
Fri 12th, 10–12pm, (New Oddfellows Hall)

Letters from the heart workshop
Fri 12th, 12.30–2.30pm, (New Oddfellows Hall)

Booking essential on 01706 810311 or tamsin@healthymindscalderdale.co.uk

HEADS UP

Please note: we know death, dying or bereavement can be painful topics to explore. The views expressed in each workshop are those of the person running it, it's possible you won't agree with them. And it might not be the right time for you. Go safely, gently, look after yourselves. Remember you can always speak to a Daisy Person if something comes up for you and you would like to talk to someone.

SPECIAL EVENTS

THINGS LEFT UNSAID?

Angry or sad, happy or mad, many of us have things left unsaid to those who've died. This is your chance to unburden your heart, there are two ways:

1. The Last Post

Write to someone departed and send it to the library or post office where it will be kept safe and unread. At the end of the festival we will burn all these letters at the Firey Funeral Feast (Sat 13th). All welcome.

Address them to our postmaster (Post Office, 7 Brook St, Todmorden, OL14 5AJ) or drop it in to PUD Postbox at Tod Library.

2. Across the Divide Archive

Last year we began the world's first ever “Across the Divide” archive of letters to the departed. These are already on display in Todmorden library. If you would like to send yours, signed or anonymous, and dedicate it to posterity, you can either email it to: pushingupdaisiestod@gmail.com or drop it in to PUD Postbox at Tod Library any time from now.

MARKET STALL

One thing in life is certain...we're all going to die! Join us for conversations about death, dying and bereavement and find out more about plans you might like to make in advance about your own end of life.

Thursday 10am–12pm, Tod Market outside stall.

Thank yous: CMBC Festivals Fund, CFFC Todmorden Wind Farm Fund and Todmorden Town Council for their generous support; the Library Service (in particular Roberta and Jon) for always saying “yes”; the Golden Lion for their invaluable offer of rooms; Hilary for all the amazing vegan nosh throughout the week; all the amazing Event Facilitators who offer every session out of the kindness of their hearts; all Daisy people who offer their time so willingly; and the Mucker Inners for the chair stacking, bunting hanging and washing up, amongst so many other things!

BOOK: todmorden.library@calderdale.gov.uk
0170 6815600 or via Eventbrite

INFO: 15 certificate

Ken Harrison is a brilliant young sculptor with a promising career. His life changes drastically when he is involved in a crippling car accident and he becomes the patient of Dr. Michael Emerson. A battle of humour and pathos begins.

Pushing Up Daisies is organised by a group of Tod folk who find talking about and planning for end of life pretty scary, and losing people pretty painful. We'd like all this stuff to be easier, kinder, more communal and not just in the hands of professionals.

This festival is about people learning stuff, making friends and building community.

In a compassionate community, provided that people are encouraged to do so, "everyone can have a useful role to play in promoting health and wellbeing at the end of life irrespective of their usual social roles and occupations"*

A whole society approach to end of life care

People and Communities Committee, Belfast City Council
Monday 16 April 2018

The case for a whole society approach

- Impacts everyone
- Demographic factors
- Limitations of clinical services

“Dying, loss and grief are not medical matters but rather social relationship matters with medical dimensions.”

Prof Allan Kellehear

What's involved?

- Role for all of society
- Care is everyone's business

Care is not solely the task of HSC services – it is everyone's responsibility, and the issues associated with death and dying cannot be fully addressed without a whole-community approach.

What are the benefits?

- Engages wider community
- Addresses a greater range of needs
- Reduces social isolation
- Supports carers
- Improves quality of life
- Supports clinical services
- Care in the community

Why Belfast City Council?

Employer

- Carer Passport scheme
- Work-place support
- Council policies

Civic leader

- Death Cafés
- Death and dying event
- Art exhibition

“Taking time, giving space, having knowledge and being willing to sit with the ‘difficult stuff’ can radically improve the experience of end of life – and that that is an incredibly worthwhile thing to do.”

Example – One day event

Potential exhibitors

- Cruse Bereavement Care
- Law Society NI
- Carers NI
- Macmillan Cancer Support
- National Association of Funeral Directors
- Men in Sheds

Example – Two day event

Day One

Have you made your will yet? – Information pop-up on wills and estates Belfast City Hall	Law Society NI
Life can be a challenge, especially when it comes to death. Talking about it can sometimes help – Death Café The Bobbin	Cruse Bereavement Care Marie Curie
Death from a different angle – Painting and sculpture exhibition exploring death and dying	The MAC Belfast
Bringing death to life – Story telling group on ageing and loss Linen Hall Library	Libraries NI

Example – Two day event

Day Two
Activity	Potential Partners
Presentation: balancing education and caring responsibilities	Carers NI Queen's University Belfast
Discussion group on living with terminal illness	Marie Curie Belfast Health and Social Care Trust
Good Grief – Practical and emotional advice session on coping with the loss of a loved one	Cruse Bereavement Care
A life well lived – bucket lists, creating memories and leaving legacies – Death Café Marie Curie Belfast Hospice	Marie Curie

Our ask

- Endorse a whole society approach to end of life care
- Programme of activity
- Action plan
- Approve by full Council
