Dear Neil,

in response to your letter dated 20th February 2012, I wish to state that I believe that I have availed to a reasonable extent my right to trade under this license because the products I.E flowers and plants are no longer generating a profitable income to cover costs and provide a wage e.g. Mothers Day eve, Saturday 2011 to the best of recollection because of transport problems I did not get out until late in the day, approximately 2pm and at 4.30pm had around £36.00 in takings, my father (who I believe has discussed the commercial inviability of these products in today's market place with you on a number of occasions at length) transported the remainder of the flowers around to his pitch in Castle Lane because there was a much better chance of selling them there, years of experience determined this action. The same process occurred on Christmas Eve 2011 were from 10am until 4pm had generated £50.00 in takings and again on St Valentines Days from 10am until 4pm £38.00 was obtained in takings. None of the aforementioned amounts were near enough to pay the cost of the stock bills. These are the busiest times of the year for these products to be sold by street traders so these are my reasons for the infrequency in trading, however with the possibility of the addition of other commodities to my license which have the potential of enabling me generate an income that would secure me a wage, I would like my license to be renewed and afford me that opportunity.

Thank You.
